THINGS TO DO

After booking your beach-side getaway, there are many things to do and see while you relax in Zanzibar. But first, you'll want to brush up on the rich history of the island.

Even though the name Zanzibar's origin is a bit hazy. It is commonly believed to get its name from the Persian zang-bâr which means "black coast".

Zanzibar's main industries are tourism, as well as Raffia palms and spices. The islands main spice exports are cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, and black pepper. It is for this reason, that Zanzibar and its neighbor, Mafia Island, are sometimes called the Spice Islands.

STONE TOWN

Stone Town is where all the action is on the island. It is a maze of winding alleys and old Arabic-style buildings, you can easily lose yourself in the ancient magical streets. Soak up the local culture by enjoying a cup of coffee from a vendor or just wander through the bustling markets.

Stone Town has many things to do including museums, spice tours and shopping

NUNGWI BEACH

This is why you booked a Zanzibar excursion, the beaches. And the beach you need to visit is the Nungwi Beach. The Nungwi village is found on Zanzibar's North West tip. This is a popular place, yet it's not congested with tourists. It is one of Zanzibar's top beaches since the tide doesn't retreat too far. This is a great beach for those looking to just soak up some sun and dip their toes in the sea.

Spend your day snorkeling or diving in the turquoise waters

JOZANI FOREST

Jozani is the last indigenous forest left on Zanzibar. It is a vast and lush blanket of green, it is located inland from Chwaka Bay. The area often floods, which luckily nurtures a unique swamp forest of many amazing looking trees and ferns. The forest is best reached via bus, chartered taxi, or as part of a tour. The forest is home to the red colobus monkey, the servaline genet, and the most likely extinct Zanzibar leopard.

FORODHANI MARKET

A spectacular night-time food market, Forodhani opens in the late afternoon in Stone Town. This market is alive with energy. Here you will find fresh local produce as well as freshly grilled fish, meat and vegetables. The seafood options are by far the most popular and the fish is served with fried potato balls, naan and samosas.

Enjoy the hustle of the outdoor markets

PRISON ISLAND

Prison Island provides tourists a glimpse into the island's dark history. It's about a thirty minute boat ride from Zanzibar. It was once used to detain slaves. Today the island is a nature reserve for giant tortoises and a place to see the ruins that once functioned as the prison.

PALACE MUSEUM

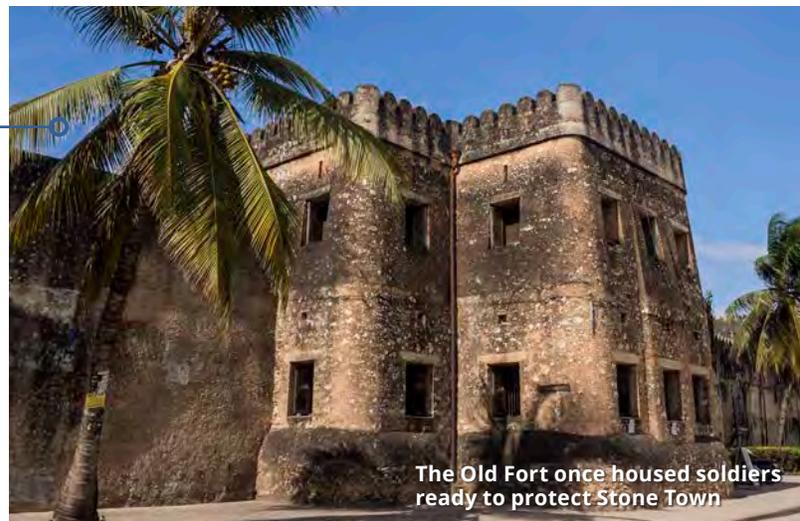

Commonly known as the Sultan's Palace, is perhaps the most historic building in Stone Town and is a must-see for any tourist. It is located along the waterfront, overlooking the ocean. It was built in the 19th century as a home for the Sultan and his family. After the 1964 revolution, the palace was used as a Government building and was renamed The People's Palace.

THE OLD FORT

The Old Fort is the oldest building in Stone Town. It is located along the waterfront. It was originally built in the 17th century with the purpose of defending the island from attacks from the Portuguese. Today it is a mainly an attraction for tourists. An old amphitheater still hosts events and functions in the fort.

The Old Fort once housed soldiers ready to protect Stone Town

SPICE TOURS

Zanzibar is known for its spice trade, so what better way to immerse yourself in the local culture than learning about its wealthiest and most profitable industry? Tourists can choose from a variety of tours and explore the winding streets with expert tour guides who will guide you through the origins of the industry.

HOUSE OF WONDERS

The House of Wonders shows the cultural and architectural influences of Zanzibar, Britain, Portugal, and Oman over the centuries. When it was built it was the most modern building in East Africa. It was the first building to have electricity and an elevator. The House of Wonders offers insight into Zanzibari and Swahili culture. It is the grandest and tallest building in all of Stone Town and is in front of the Forodhani Gardens along the waterfront.

House of Wonders is one of six palaces built by the second Sultan of Zanzibar

THE ROCK

Visitors are treated with not only a stunning view but fine dining as well. The restaurant is located on a rock with a view over all the city's main sights. The Rock has some of the best seafood Zanzibar has to offer. Make sure to make reservations since this exclusive restaurant has only 12 tables.

Depending on the tide, you'll have to wade or boat out to the Rock
